DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 16-24 and 28-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Uomori et al US 2004/0041997A1.

Referring to claim 16, Uomori discloses in figures 1-25 a sensor comprising: light sources (11) situated in the form of a two-dimensional matrix (figure 2) for generating light beams emitted in various directions; means for receiving light beams reflected by objects; and means for evaluating the received light beams according to direction and transmit time in the sense of a three-dimensional imaging of the objects (see Abstract).

Referring to claim 17, wherein the light sources are at different distances from each other (see figures 2a-c).

Referring to claim 18, wherein the light sources are situated on column-shaped subassemblies. (Figure 2)

Referring to claim 19, wherein the light sources are mounted as individual components on a printed circuit board (see paragraph [0067]).

Referring to claim 20, wherein the individual light sources are staggered in zigzag fashion, in each case within one column (fig. 2c, [0056])

Referring to claim 21, wherein the light sources are controllable independently of one another (see Abstract).

Referring to claims 22-23, wherein the light sources include light-emitting diodes [0055].

Referring to claim 24, further comprising a collective lens situated in front of each light source.

Referring to claim 28, wherein the means for receiving includes an optical receiver having a collective lens and a light-sensitive area for receiving the beams reflected by the objects [0075].

Referring to claim 29, wherein the light-sensitive area includes an optoelectric receiver [0075].

Referring to claim 30, wherein the light-sensitive area includes optoelectric receivers situated in a matrix configuration ("CCD" [0075]).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 25-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Uomori et al US 2004/0041997A1. Referring to claim 25-27, Uomori does not mention having collective lens, waveguides, or the specific cross-section. However, all these are very well known given the system of Uomori to generate the desired illumination pattern. It would have been obvious to include any type of optical lens or to have any specific cross-section to generate the desired illumination pattern that is best for generating the 3D range image.
